

Dear expectant parents,

Thank you so much for taking the time to get to know us. We know a lot of these letters probably start to sound the same. It's hard to write to someone you've never met, especially regarding such a personal and difficult decision. We are so grateful that you have chosen life and are considering adoption for your child.

If you choose us to parent your child, we promise to unconditionally love and cherish your child. He or she will know of your selfless sacrifices and courageous decision to choose adoption. You will hold a place of importance and respect within our family. Your child will be included, celebrated and encouraged. We aren't perfect. Our house isn't always clean and the dishes aren't always done. We don't drive the fanciest cars or have huge offices, BUT we do have a lot of fun and a lot of love. We promise to surround your child with positive influences and godly examples. We want you to know that you are valuable and made in the image of God. We are praying for peace and comfort as you make this decision.

With love,

Robert & Rebecca
